It seems, however, that the author of Esther does reference the name of the Lord with sufficient signposts as to leave his intention clear. The feast of Purim was thus established and imposed by the Jews upon themselves and their descendants with the urgent responsibility of celebrating these days every year, and continued in every family of the Jews, wherever they were, that the memory of this great occasion should not be allowed to fade from their minds vv. But formal religion, though it often speaks of giving glory to God, does not even know whereof it speaks: it indulges merely in lip service. The situation was so electric that at that moment the king would be ready to act without hesitation, and immediately one servant took the opportunity to announce to the king that Haman had made a gallows on which he planned to hang Mordecai. Little is known for sure of the background of Mordecai. What happened in those twenty-four hours was of the greatest importance see chap.

Her words are an expression not of despair but of resignation in light of what is the pride of the natural man. I will pour out on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the Spirit of grace and of supplication, so that they will look on Me whom they have pierced; and they will mourn for Him, as one mourns for an only son, and they will weep bitterly over Him like the bitter weeping over a firstborn Zechariah
